Investing in Principal Supervisors to Lead School Improvement

Educating all children at high levels depends largely upon having effective school building principals. Yet, skill at implementing quality systems for recruiting, developing and evaluating principals, is not universally strong. Superintendents and Principal Supervisors agree that quality principal supervision programs should be a high priority. This session highlights strategies and tools developed by school districts and researchers with support of the Wallace Foundation that assist districts to select and develop principal supervisors. Highly skilled principal supervisors provide on the job support, coaching and supervision for building leaders to lead school improvement.

our vision

Transformed schools

empowering all students

regardless of background, to create

LIMITLESS FUTURES

for themselves, their families, their communities, and the world.
We partner with courageous leaders in classrooms, schools, and the systems that support them to eliminate educational inequities by creating cultures of rigorous teaching, learning, and leading.
Equity Is a Key Principle of Our Work

- Equal Outcomes
- Fairness
- Access and Support
- Respect for Differences
- Achievement of Every Student
If students are not learning, they are not being afforded powerful learning opportunities.

Teaching is a highly complex and sophisticated endeavor.

Practice of sophisticated endeavors only improves when it is open to public scrutiny.

Improving practice in a culture that is “public” requires reciprocal accountability.

Reciprocal accountability implies a particular kind of leadership to improve teaching and learning.

Leaders cannot lead what they don’t know.
Two-Part Equation

Common language for high-quality instruction

Knowing how to lead for that

Instructional Anatomy + Instructional Leadership = Instructional Effectiveness
Leaders cannot lead what they do not know.

Expertise Matters.
• Expertise affects what we notice.
• Expertise can be developed.
• Practice makes Expertise.

Instructional Leadership

Our 4D™ instructional leadership framework identifies a vision for principals and other school leaders who want to improve instructional practice. The framework is organized into four dimensions:
Shifts in Thinking About Instructional Leadership

From:

• A generic concept.
• Principal, the sole instructional leader.
• Improving practice, an occasional PD activity.
• Some use of data.
• Primary focus on instruction.

To:

• A well-defined set of practices.
• Principal, the “leader of leaders.”
• Improving practice, a daily concern.
• Improving practice highly dependent upon evidence.
• Creating conditions and supports for quality instruction.

Poll

Our school system has clarity and consensus on the role and work of principals as instructional leaders.

A. Very much so.
B. Getting closer with more work to do.
C. Progressing – wish we were further along.
D. Just beginning – with much more work to do.
It’s all about instructional leadership!

Goal: Deepening understanding of the role of principal as an instructional leader.

The importance of prioritizing what principals need to focus on as an instructional leader.
Principals surveyed in 2013:

- 75% Principal job has become too complex.
- 69% Job responsibilities very different from 5 years ago.

Challenges Faced by Principals

- Instructional leadership has not previously been a focus.
- Varying demands from Central Office.
- Varying levels of support from Central Office.
- Clarity on their roles as a principal.
- Clarity on expectations for school’s success.
Instructional Leader

“If you want to leverage improvement in a school system, the most critical role is the principal.”

If the central office does X

Then principals will be able to do Y

Which means teachers will do Z

Which will result in achievement for all students!

Big Ideas

If you have a theory of action that principal leadership matters to improve student learning, …

Then you need to be ultra intentional about how to grow principal practice or you will continue to have variability in principal performance and student success.
Our Principal Support Framework illustrates what it means for district leaders to support principals as instructional leaders. The framework defines three action areas, each with indicators of success:

1. SYSTEM OF SUPPORT FOR DEVELOPING PRINCIPALS AS INSTRUCTIONAL LEADERS
2. SHARED VISION OF PRINCIPALS AS INSTRUCTIONAL LEADERS
3. MAKING IT POSSIBLE FOR PRINCIPALS TO BE INSTRUCTIONAL LEADERS
A Shared Vision of Principals as Instructional Leaders

Action Area 1

A Shared Vision of Principals as Instructional Leaders

The school system has defined, clearly and in detail, what it expects principals to do as the instructional leaders of their schools. It selects and evaluates principals based primarily on whether they can successfully execute those practices.

- Principals understand the school system’s expectations for their role and effective practice as school instructional leaders.
- That is the work they perform day-to-day, and effective practices can be sustained over time.
Rationale for Action Area 1

Shared vision and understanding of the principal as an instructional leader.

- Clarifies principal expectations and day-to-day work as instructional leaders.
- Becomes the basis for professional learning, assessing and measuring performance.
- Drives the hiring of principal candidates.

System of Support for Developing Principals as Instructional Leaders
Action Area 2
Principals have the skills, tools, and supports that they need to grow and successfully apply the system’s high-priority instructional leadership practices.
Rationale for Action Area 2

- Supervision is an insufficient lever to improve practice.
- Principal professional development is often outsourced, topical in nature, and led by a variety of departments.
- Few intensive and intentional job-embedded opportunities to improve instructional leadership skills.
- Few formal opportunities for principals to collaborate to improve their practice.
Action Area 2: What We Are Learning

Start with principal learning systems that include:

- Professional development.
- Coaching.
- Mentoring.
- Principal agency/collaboration.
What We Are Learning (cont’d)

Includes principal supervisors who possess:

- Deep understanding of effective instructional practices.

- Deep understanding of effective leadership practices, especially instructional leadership and human capital management.

- Adult teaching and coaching skills to help principals learn and develop; for example, working from evidence, working from problems of practice.
Systems of Principal Professional Learning: Key Concepts

Ownership, agency, and choice
- Rooted in school context.
- Principal performance needs.

Differentiation
- What the school needs.
- What the principal needs.

Access
- Expertise, coaching and mentoring from peers, supervisors and other central office leaders.
Principal Learning Systems: Resources and Structures

Resources
- Principal Supervisors
- Professional Developers
- Mentors
- Coaches
- Subject Matter Experts

Structures
- 1:1 Visits
- Networks / PLCs
- Affinity Groups
- Professional Learning Sessions
- Triads
Making it Possible for Principals to be Instructional Leaders

Action Area 3
The central office develops systemic solutions that ensure instructional leadership is the primary job of principals.
Rationale for Action Area 3

• Principals need more time for instructional leadership.
• Principals don’t always know what they need from the central office.
• Compliance and monitoring are not the same as a strategic partnership.
• Central office has the potential to add value to schools!
A Major Iteration of Action Area 3

- Differentiated Service
- Proactive
- Add Value to Principals
- Learning Org
- Efficient + Integrated

QUESTIONS
Successful Students Need Outstanding Teachers. Effective Leaders Make That Happen.

The Center for Educational Leadership helps districts close the achievement gap through effective instruction. But teachers can’t do it alone. Both school and district leaders have to create a culture of learning and support for teachers to excel. Our nationally recognized experts, working with research-based methods, help all levels of a school system improve achievement for all students.
